

The Connector

A weekly publication of Harris County Department of Education for the HCDE Board of Trustees

From the office of JAMES COLBERT, JR. | SUPERINTENDENT

Of Note...

While I trust that you've had an enjoyable year thus far, I regret to mention that we returned to the office after Winter Break only to be saddened upon learning of the loss of a dedicated employee, Mr. Dana McNatt, math teacher at Highpoint North. Mr. McNatt suffered a stroke over the holiday season and unfortunately passed away as a result of associated complications. The Highpoint North administration and faculty had the dreaded responsibility of informing the students of this great loss and consoling them during their grief. While I hate to be the bearer of such sad news, I would be remiss if I didn't bring to your attention this significant loss of a strong link in HCDE's internal education chain.

Upon my return, I continued to seize opportunities to expand my network within the Harris County area having met with Superintendent Benny Soileau from Huffman ISD earlier this week and with State Representative Garnet Coleman, just this morning. Earlier this week, I also had the pleasure of meeting with the Vice President/General Manager of Fox 26 Houston, D'Artagnan Bebel.

Please be reminded that January is Board Appreciation Month! We look forward to honoring you for your continued service to the children of Harris County at a reception that will be held on Thursday, January 22, 2015 at 12:00 noon in the HCDE Conference Center on the 5th floor of the parking garage. Immediately following that reception at our Board Meeting at 1:00 p.m., we will swear in our two new trustees, Mr. Don Sumners and Mr. Michael Wolfe. Please look forward to those two events.

This week has been one of regrouping. Schools are back in session after winding down the fall semester. Divisions and program staff are playing post Winter Break catch-up. Our client districts are also making similar typical second semester adjustments this week so although busy, it's a slower week at HCDE than usual. We're gearing up for big things this semester!

I hope you enjoy this first issue of The Connector for calendar year 2015!

Grant awards to continue as 8 organizations gain $80,000 in afterschool funding from City Connections initiative with City of Houston, CASE for Kids

Eight Houston organizations will each receive afterschool funding through June 2015 ranging from $5,000 to $22,500 as part of an ongoing funding project from the City of Houston. The collaboration between the Center for Afterschool, Summer and Extended Learning, or CASE for Kids, a division of Harris County Department of Education and the City of Houston spreads $550,000 between all 11 city council districts. Grant applications from Houston organizations continue to be accepted through April 6, 2015.

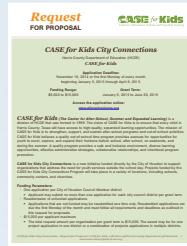

The first wave of money awarded to the eight organizations totals $80,031 of the $550,000 appropriated for youth. Awards are announced on the first Monday of each month. The final award will be announced May 4. Funds are available for use from January 2015 through June 2015.

City Connections is an innovative initiative spearheaded by Houston City Councilmember C.O. Bradford last summer and CASE for Kids. The out-of-school time funding is intended to help fight juvenile crime and to promote child safety during the hours of 3-6 p.m. during the school year when parents are working and in the summertime. The funding is especially needed due to decreased state and federal funding streams which previously supported afterschool locally.

The following organizations gain the funding this month, along with their locations, award amounts and Houston City Council districts:

Alief Family YMCA (Community Outreach Missions Education Team), $11,250, District F (77083); Alief Independent School District (Martin Elementary and Miller Intermediate), $22,500, District F (77072 and 77082); Chinese Community Center, $11,250, District F (77036); Citizen Schools Texas (Patrick Henry Middle School), $5,000, District B (77093); College Community Center (Spring Woods and Northbrook high schools in Spring Branch Independent School District), $5,000, District A (77080); Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District (Bane Elementary School), $5,031, District A (77040); Houston Independent School District (Chavez High School), $15,000, District I (77017); and Solutions for Better Living (iServe Fifth Ward), $5,000, District B (77020).

To apply for City Connections funding, go to www.afterschoolzone.org and access CASE for Kids City Connections. Call 713-696-1331 for more information.

Houston Independent School District After School Programs Manager Jonnelle Hollins and Chavez High School Development Coordinator Carolyn Teas accept a check for $15,000 from City Councilmember Robert Gallegos (District I) and CASE for Kids Director Lisa Thompson-Caruthers. Chavez High School is one of eight organizations awarded the first wave of grants in afterschool funding from the City Connections initiative with the City of Houston and CASE for Kids.

Houston-Area Middle, High School Students Recruited for Energy City of the Future 2050 Competition

Energy City of the Future 2050 will be held this year on February 21. The curriculum introduces students to a variety of career fields in engineering, urban planning, technology, architecture, transportation, science and energy. Students learn about the careers and their connections to urban sustainability. Students connect with industry professionals and potential career mentors through information-gathering activities and onsite tours of destinations essential to the city's infrastructure. They develop communication and marketing skills through team presentations of visionary concepts and scale models of Houston 2050 in a judged competition. The competition is funded by the Education Foundation of Harris County. CASE for Kids implements and staffs the program and organizes the culminating event. Go to <http://www.energycityofthefuture.com> to join the competition or learn more.
